

Strikes launched by teachers in Illinois districts

By The Associated Press
Teachers in several Illinois cities went on strike today. In Urbana, teachers also voted to strike and set up pickets where conferences were to have been held. Classes were to begin Tuesday and administrators told parents to send their children to school, where supervisory personnel would staff the rooms. The Belvidere Educational Association bargained with administrators until 4:30 a.m., but were unable to reach a satisfactory contract agreement and teachers refused to report for classes today. Teachers' meetings were to have been held in Mattoon today, with classes beginning

Tuesday, but school administrators told the system's 4,500 pupils to stay home Tuesday while efforts are made to resolve the differences. Mattoon teachers voted at 6:30 a.m. to strike today, less than two hours before they were to report for meetings. In Belvidere, about 5,700 pupils in all the city's public schools were affected by the walkout of 291 teachers who belong to the BEA. A mediation session was scheduled for Tuesday. Money is the key issue in the failure of the BEA and School District 100 to reach agreement. At a press conference Sunday, teachers, negotiator Bill Van Kuren said the Mattoon

Education Association and the school board were about $525 apart on salary figures. The two groups met with a federal negotiator throughout the weekend. An impasse in the bargaining was declared July 29. The board is offering increases in salary and extra-duty pay averaging 7.5 per cent. The teachers are asking for increases averaging over 10 per cent, Van Kuren said. Today was a teachers' institute day. School for the district's 4,500 students is scheduled to begin Tuesday. Van Kuren said 90 per cent of the district's 274 teachers belong to the education association. Base pay for teachers with a bachelor's degree and no experience is $8,600. The school board's first offer was a $200 pay hike, Van Kuren said, but was increased to $9,025. The education association originally asked for $10,100, but lowered their request to $9,550.

Ford calls for incentives, attacks federal regulation

CHICAGO (AP) — Declaring America's economic machine is not running at top speed, President Ford today called for incentives for industry and an end to the "quicksand" of federal business regulation.

Ford told a audience of business executives that U.S. industry is starving for capital to expand but is strangled by inflation, restrictive tax laws and government red tape.

"Our financial ability to increase production is declining," the President told about 2,000 persons attending a convention of the American Hardware Manufacturers Assn. "This decline is curtailing needed growth in jobs and income and undermining our ability to compete internationally."

The audience was most responsive when he attacked federal regulations on business.

"Bureaucratic monopolies have tangled business in conflicting policies and red tape for far too long," Ford said. "I want to see the American businessman pushing merchandise — not pencils."

The President stopped in Chicago on his way home from a two-week vacation in the Colorado Rockies. Before returning to Washington tonight, he was to stop in Milwaukee for meetings with news executives and a televised interview.

Ford told the manufacturers his administration policies, if adopted by Congress, would lead to increased jobs, income and full economic recovery. Ford noted that despite a high unemployment rate, 85 million Americans are at work. He said the challenge is to create 14 million new jobs by 1980 "to meet the needs of our expanding population."

The President said that just before Congress recessed for August he proposed to stimulate capital investment through tax incentives. Those proposals included an increased investment tax credit, tax exemptions on preferred stock dividends and an end to "double taxation on dividends — in which both the corporation and stockholder are taxed."

Ford continued: "As expected, these proposals have raised an outcry from some members of Congress ... but the Congress has come up with no alternatives. We must do something about expanding our sources of capital to create jobs — and we must do it now."

He said some experts estimate that total investment requirements could reach as high as $4 trillion in the next few years.

In his strongest statement yet about what he calls excessive government regulation, Ford told the manufacturers "my object is to get the federal government as far out of your business, out of your lives, out of your pocket and out of your hair — as I can."

"Government regulations and restrictions now cost consumers billions of dollars each year," he said. "One of the goals I have set for myself as President is to cut big government down to size," he said. "I want to put an end to the mountain of paperwork and the quicksand of regulation which big government makes every American businessman cope with."

The President also said that, as part of his over-all program, "We must maintain an antitrust policy which validates our commitment to competitive markets."

Ford stopped here on his way back to Washington from a two-week western vacation.

Ford harkened back to his Navy days Sunday night when he sat down to dinner with one of the nation's leading Democrats, Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The President explained the difference between his party and Daley's by saying that Daley "tends to favor the port (left) tack and I tend to favor the starboard (right) tack." The setting was appropriate for the nautical flavor of Ford's remark — a private dinner at the Chicago Yacht Club held by Daley for participants and officials of the 1975 championships of the International Star Class Yacht Racing Association.

Ford also observed "that I have been crew and now I am a skipper, and believe me, being a part of the crew is easier."

After leaving his vacation spot at Vail, Colo., Ford flew Sunday to Libby Dam, Mont., where he helped dedicate a $470-million hydroelectric plant.

He got in his last round of golf at the Vail municipal course Saturday. Ford put in around five hours a day on the links for 11 days. The only times he missed were the two days he was on a speaking trip in the Midwest.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that as of Thursday night, the President had spent 108 hours at work, and 44 hours and 20 minutes at play. The work included sessions with his staff.

Butz says U.S. learning to use food as a tool of diplomacy

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Calling America the "world's grainery," U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz said today the nation is learning to use food as a tool of foreign diplomacy.

"We are finally learning how to use food as a factor in our new role as peacebroker of the world," Butz told the more than 1,000 persons attending a White House conference here.

Acknowledging the criticism some experts have leveled at the nearly 10 million ton sale of U.S. grain to Russia so far this year, Butz said it was "far better we exchange bushels with them than bullets."

He said "agriculture has become the (nation's) number one source of foreign exchange," and he claimed U.S. agricultural exports in the fiscal year ending June 30 nearly paid for the energy supplies the nation imported last year.

Displaying what recently has become a trademark—a one-pound loaf of white bread—Butz repeated his argument that middlemen, not farmers, are reaping the benefits of higher food prices. Splitting a locally-purchased loaf of bread into two stacks, he said three slices represented the farmer's return on wheat, while 18 represented such costs as those of production, transportation and packaging.

He praised the farmer as the nation's best inflation-fighter and said farmers were hurt more than any other segment of society by inflation. For example, he said wheat and corn prices are well below levels of a year ago, but the cost of farm equipment is up.

"If there's any group in society injured by inflation, it's the farmer," he said.

Butz said he believed one reason Americans were so conscious of food prices was that they generally pay cash for food rather than using credit.

"Food is about the only thing we still pay cash for," he said. "Everything else is a dollar down and a dollar a week."

He also predicted that 1975 would be "the fullest production year we have ever had in America."

Shakeup in Portugal seen

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Reliable sources said today President Francisco da Costa Gomes has decided to dismiss his pro-Communist premier, Gen. Vasco Gonçalves, and replace him with politically moderate military men.

The sources said the president had conveyed his intentions in confidence and was hoping Gonçalves would agree to go on his own accord before other officers delivered on a threat to oust him by force.

The Communist party, which has spread its influence under the premier's patronage, was standing behind Gonçalves with vague threats of mobilization to protect him. Some army units loyal to the premier were reported on alert.

There were more civilian demonstrations and show-of-strength military maneuvers by both sides in the power struggle.

Anti-Goncalves army units had access to most of the approaches to Lisbon, but a light artillery regiment reported to be one of the few units backing the premier commanded the main highway on the northern outskirts of the capital.

The pro-Goncalves regiment parked mobile howitzers at the gates of its barracks less than a mile from the Lisbon airport and stacked sandbags in defensive positions inside the camp.

Thompson calls for strongest GOP ticket possible

By ROBERT H. NELLIS

Big Jim Thompson (6 ft. 6½ in.), the former federal prosecutor who caused many high-placed officials to go to prison for wrong doing and who now is seeking the Republican nomination to run for governor, was in Lee County on Sunday.

He spoke briefly at the Lee County Republican picnic held in the 4-H Federation Building at U.S. 30 and Franklin Road which was attended by about 600 persons.

Thompson, who is 38 and single, asked Republicans to "give the people the strongest possible ticket," and then work hard to get those candidates elected.

He promised to conduct an administration people would be proud of at the end of the term and pledged to surround himself with a staff dedicated to "integrity, hard work and a reverence for public service."

Thompson said, "Many people feel they have not had a governor for the past three years."

"Walker knows politics but he does not know how to run state government," charged the candidate.

He complained the Walker administration has looked for political advantage when confronted with problems rather than seeking to find the right solution.

Thompson predicted 1976 will be a good Republican year. "I've seen more good Republican candidates this year than in all the years I watched the political scene."

The former prosecutor declared Republicans know it takes a team to run state government, charging Gov. Walker's office has fought with the legislature and other state offices rather than trying to work cooperatively with them to give good government.

"The trouble with Walker and his people," Thompson said in an interview, "is they don't talk to anybody or seek advice from anyone; they just decide what to do on their own."

He referred to the furlough program for prisoners stating, "They launched it and let out some strange characters and were lucky not more crime was committed by those furloughed prisoners."

"They didn't tell local sheriffs and state's attorneys they were furloughing prisoners in their counties."

"The flap (public reaction) to criminal activity by those furloughed men caused the Walker people to quietly change the system."

Thompson said he believes in furloughs for prisoners as a device to help a person toward achieving a successful parole. "I would favor furloughs for those prisoners who soon will be paroled."

The candidate said he has encountered three responses on the campaign trail which indicate people want a change.

"There are those who say, 'anything is better than what we have,'" Thompson observed.

"There have been Democratic precinct committeemen downstate who have told me they will work for my candidacy."

"There is an expressed feeling people were sold a bill of goods when Walker campaigned. He said he was not a politician but he has conducted a politically motivated administration. Walker said he was against patronage and would get rid of patronage workers but he has not," recited Thompson.

Thompson was born in Chicago, but his mother is from DeKalb and his father from Somonauk, and he said he spent most of his childhood summers on the farm of his grandfather near Hinckley.

Asked about parallels between his career and that of former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, Thompson noted they had both been U.S. federal attorneys for the Northern Illinois District; that Ogilvie had gotten much publicity for prosecuting organized crime members while during his tenure the interest was on trials of public officials.

Thompson said he was in the Cook County state's attorney's office from 1959 to 1964 and had contacts with Ogilvie who was Cook County sheriff from 1962 to 1966 and that in 1969 he was on the staff of Atty. Gen. William Scott when Ogilvie was governor.

Congressmen spend; we pay

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Congress has adjourned for its summer romp, happy as a field of buttercups on a summer day. But the wreckage these spend - your - way - to - happiness windbags have left behind is devastating. They spend, we pay.

First, as I detailed in this column on Aug. 6, they outrageously boost their own salaries—again—and tack on a cost-of-living increase on top of the $41,500 a year they're already getting from us taxpaying peasants, added to the previous 41.5 per cent increase they "voice-voted" (so it didn't appear on the record) themselves.

No wonder millions among us maintain that our softer and softer dollar should be used only to pay our politicians' salaries.

They likewise continued, and expanded, all their other self-voted perquisites: extra offices, free telephone and telegraph costs, mailing privileges, a "voice-voted" 50 per cent in their own traveling allowances, lush gravy-train junkets abroad at the taxpayers' expense and enough other self-gifts to make an oil-rich Arab sheik green with envy.

We're supposed to have a Freedom of Information Act, but behind the scenes most of this finagling is done in a cover-up big enough to buy Mt. Everest.

Their further happiness is based on the political trick of causing the people of our country to believe that they are getting something for nothing.

It's a shell game that our Washington Robin Hoods of the Red Ink play on us with the nerve of riverboat gamblers. But when you challenge them they fall as silent as fish in water.

While the resulting inflation whirls through our country like a centrifugal pump, the politicians ride their own gravy train and we, in turn, grow progressively poorer; helpless, struggling men and women futilely facing the politically created inflation surf by joining hands in a chain to keep from being carried away.

For the first 163 years of this Republic, namely from the presidency of George Washington until the 1952 election of President Eisenhower, federal spending for all-domestic nonwar purposes totaled $13 billion.

By 1959 this $13 billion rose to $72 billion. The fiscal 1975 budget figure was $167 billion. In the past seven years alone our domestic nonwar outpourings increased by more than the amount they had reached in 1969 after 182 years of growth.

Children under 18 increased only four per cent but the Aid to families with Dependent Children increased 456 per cent. School enrollment less than doubled between 1952 and 1975. But educational spending multiplied eight times.

School construction appears to have zoomed. But it is highly doubtful that we are building more school rooms. The cost of land, buildings and fixtures has eaten up the differences.

Urban renewal? It has destroyed three times the dwellings it has created. Elsewhere in our cities about half of the 15,000 selected buildings officially designated as being of architectural importance or as historic landmarks have been destroyed.

Population has grown only 33 per cent but employment on the public payroll has leapt 129 per cent—thanks to the Washington Robin Hoods of the Red Ink who have stuffed Washington and our 50 states with more bureaucrats than a cat has fur.

Although these denizens' total overspending is the main source of the inflation, it is simply not true, as many of the Washington windbags would have us believe, that the increased overspending is due to our armaments.

Our national defense takes less than seven per cent of our Gross National Income. In government—or any enterprise—savings have a domino effect. You save here because you have saved there, because you have saved somewhere else.

The congressional and bureaucratic defeat of that domino effect reverses it; you waste here, because you have wasted there, because you have wasted somewhere else.

Congress is up to its wattles in this waste while we taxpaying peasants pay the bill. The fact is there; inescapable.

Bagehot: most versatile genius

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Recently the Columbia University School of Journalism established a fellowship for journalists interested in business and financial reporting. The fellowship was named after Walter Bagehot.)

By NORMAN ST. JOHN-STEVES

Walter Bagehot (1826-1877), banker, economist, political thinker, critic and man of letters was Victorian England's most versatile genius.

In 1857, Bagehot became friendly with James Wilson, founder and proprietor of The Economist and the following year married his eldest daughter, Eliza. On Wilson's death in 1860, Bagehot became permanent director of The Economist and editor in 1861, a post which he occupied until his death in 1877 at the early age of 51.

Bagehot's literary essays have earned him a place in the pantheon of English literary criticism. His essays on Cowper, Scott, Dickens, Tennyson and Thackeray are full of illuminating insights. His study of Shakespeare is probably the best brief appreciation of the poet that has so far been written. Bagehot's principal claim to fame however is as a political writer, his "English Constitution" has become a classic, and his "Physics and Politics," "that golden little book," as William James called it, an application of Darwinian ideas to the formation and growth of societies has become almost equally celebrated.

Bagehot's prowess as an economist is shown by his third famous book "Lombard Street" which explains in the clearest way the mysteries of the workings of the London money market. In addition to these works Bagehot contributed between two and four articles every week to The Economist when he was its editor. It is an astonishing record of productivity.

The Economist is now publishing the complete works of Bagehot in an edition which will eventually run to 12 volumes. They are being edited by myself and already eight volumes have appeared, the literary essays in two volumes, the historical in another two, and four volumes of political essays. Still to come are three volumes devoted to Bagehot's economic writings and a final volume of letters and bibliographies. The volumes are being published simultaneously in Britain and the United States.

Bagehot took a close interest in the history and politics of America. "The English Constitution," despite its name, contains many references to the American form of government and is in effect a comparative study of the parliamentary and presidential systems with conclusions highly favorable to English government. Bagehot was staking a claim for the adoption of the English rather than the American system in the free states of the future.

The book and its arguments so impressed Woodrow Wilson, who at that time was a professor at Princeton, that he wrote an article arguing for the end of the separation of powers in the United States and the introduction of the English system under which members of the cabinet have to be members of the legislature.

Later Wilson wrote his book "Congressional Government" to do for Americans what Bagehot had done for English readers in "The English Constitution."

Bagehot's editorship of The Economist coincided with the period of the American Civil War. He followed events in the war closely and the articles he wrote (40 of which have been republished in the present edition) constitute a perceptive and valuable record of how the war appeared to a reasonably objective and well informed contemporary observer.

Bagehot saw the faults and shortcomings of both sides. He disliked the arrogance and boastfulness of the North, the fruits of its democracy, but he was also highly critical of the institution of slavery as it was found in the South. He was not doctrinaire in his condemnation of slavery but thought it could give rise only to evils in commercial society. He was against any extension of slavery but also against its precipitate abolition and Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation was strongly criticized by The Economist.

In this, the magazine's views were in marked contrast to those of many other English commentators, especially to The Spectator, which was consistently pro-North and looked upon the Civil War as a simple attempt to end slavery.

Like other English editors, Bagehot underestimated Lincoln and was highly critical of Lincoln's lack of education and political and diplomatic training. Only after Lincoln's assassination were amends made: "We do not know in history such an example of the growth of a ruler in wisdom as was exhibited by Mr. Lincoln. Power and responsibility visibly widened his mind and elevated his character."

Bagehot's interest in the United States was lifelong although he never, unfortunately, visited America himself. His most distinguished American admirer was President Wilson, whose devotion to Bagehot was so great that he made a private pilgrimage to Langport to visit his birthplace and grave during the Versailles peace conference.

"Had I command of the culture of men" wrote Wilson in a remarkable tribute, "I should wish to raise up for the instruction and stimulation of my nation more than one sane, sagacious, penetrative critic of men and affairs like Walter Bagehot."

Later in the same essay he added: "It would be a most agreeable good fortune to introduce Bagehot to men who have not read him. To ask your friend to know Bagehot is like inviting him to seek pleasure."

Defects in defects system

From the start of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's vehicle defect identification program in 1966 through June of 1974, domestic and foreign automobile manufacturers issued 1,582 recalls involving nearly 46 million vehicles.

Yet according to a report by the General Accounting Office, millions of these vehicles have never been inspected for potential defects and remain on the highways. Among the reasons, says the GAO:

—Not all owners receive defect notifications.

—Some dealers apparently sell recalled vehicles without correcting the defects.

—Many owners simply do not return their vehicles for inspection, and even when they do, dealers are not always prepared to make the necessary corrections.

On the face of it, this sounds like an extremely serious situation. Fortunately, while a recall campaign may involve tens of thousands of a particular model, in most cases the loose or missing bolt or failure-prone part or whatever has been discovered on only a handful of vehicles.

Nevertheless, even one defective automobile or truck on the highway is too many.

Responding to the GAO study, safety administrator James Gregory suggested that the best way to attack the problem would be to verify defect correction through state registration or licensing mechanisms rather than by periodic inspections, which not all states require.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has discussed with several states the feasibility of setting up programs to deny licenses or registration to vehicles that have been recalled but not checked or repaired. Computer-stored Vehicle Identification Numbers provided by the manufacturers would be used to spot cars that have been recalled.

However, the implementation of such programs, even on a pilot basis, is still mostly in the talking-about-it stage.

Which means that until some such system is instituted nationwide, the responsibility for seeing that potential vehicle defects are corrected will remain largely up to individual owners.

Parts surpass the whole

Car owners are getting hit twice by inflation—once when they lay out hundreds of dollars more for a current model than for comparable models a year or two ago, and again when they hit another motorist.

One major auto insurer reports that the average claim for damaged cars is $455 this year. This is an increase of 31 per cent over 1971 and a jump of 20 per cent in the past 12 months alone.

A recent industry survey showed that the cost of "crash" parts—the eight major parts most frequently damaged in traffic accidents—is running 25 per cent higher than a year ago.

Some samples: A new fender for a Ford Galaxie 500 cost $74.10 in 1971 and $76.40 in 1974 but surged to $93.55 in 1975.

A replacement hood for Chevrolet Impala cost $77.95 in 1971, $79.90 in 1974 and $103.80 in 1975.

A door for a Plymouth Fury III cost $120.90 in 1971, $132.18 in 1974 and $178.82 in 1975.

Even the so-called economy cars are in the big-time class when it comes to replacement parts. A fender for an AMC Gremlin has gone from $63.20 in 1971 to $82.95 in 1974 to $99.36 in 1975.

The reason insurance costs have remained fairly stable despite these increases is that the accident rate went down, thanks to the 55-mph limit and the gasoline pinch. That is, the higher cost of each accident was offset by the lower accident rate.

All that began to change around mid-1974, however, when auto parts prices began to zoom. The result, warn insurance spokesmen, is that insurance premiums are going to have to go up, too.

Drunk monkeys giving clues to alcoholism

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Monkeys sporting plastic hats and a slight alcoholic buzz may help researchers determine the effects of withdrawal on the moderate drinker.

"There is a tremor of the hands and extremities even in early stages of alcohol withdrawal," said Dr. Walter A. Pieper, a scientist with the Yerkes Regional Primate Center.

"Our research focuses on moderate alcohol intake," said Pieper, who is working with the small rhesus monkey, "but the dependency is still there and can be seen in the tremors."

Pieper and his staff maintain different blood levels with different monkeys and it's done by infusing alcohol directly into a vein.

Monkeys used in the research have an external portion of a catheter left in a tough plastic box — somewhat resembling a woman's hat known as the pillbox style — permanently secured to their heads.

The animal is strapped into a chair and the tubing in the box on its head connected to the alcohol which then is infused at a rate that matches the monkey's ability to metabolize it into his bloodstream.

"We give them loading doses to get the blood alcohol level up to the desired level and maintain that by putting in alcohol at the same level they burn it up," Pieper said.

Dose levels are in range with those of human moderate drinkers, he said.

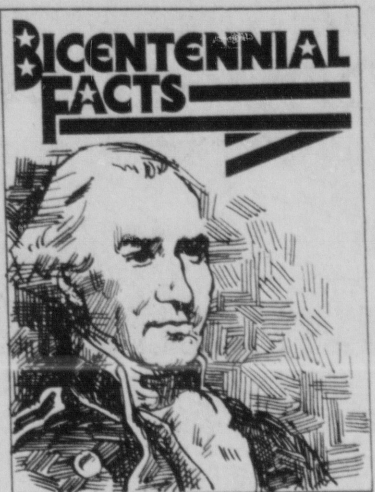

The tremors are measured by attaching a small device known as a transducer, which records the animal's tiniest muscle movement. It measures the change in frequency of the tremors during the period of alcohol withdrawal.

Pieper said that scientists already know a great deal about the large intake of alcohol from studying humans — their tremors, hallucinations and withdrawals.

"What we're trying to develop is a method for detecting a mild dependence," he said.

"What remains to be done is to establish a relationship between the degree of physical dependence and the tremor frequency," Pieper added.

The research, which has been under way for more than a year, is aimed at helping humans make an intelligent choice of their alcohol intake and answer such questions as: What is a moderate intake? What are the consequences of moderate intake on physical dependence?

Johann Kalb, son of Bavarian peasants, was to be known in America as "Baron de Kalb." The soldier of fortune contracted to join the American Army in early November and sailed on April 20, 1777 from France with Lafayette. Congress voted Kalb a commission as Maj. Gen. on Sept. 15. He joined Washington in early November and spent the winter at Valley Forge. In April, 1780, Kalb was ordered to Charleston. He relinquished command to American Gen. Gates July 25 but remained with the army. Ignoring Kalb's professionally sound advice, Gates made decisions which led to the annihilation of the army in the Camden Campaign, where Kalb was mortally wounded in the battle and died Aug. 19, The World Almanac recalls.

Pinups of these girls win approval of wife

NILES, Ill. (AP) — Dave Farmer, 46, likes his girlfriends big, well-rounded and dangerous. He hangs their pictures on his recreation room wall, and his wife doesn't even mind.

Among his favorites are Blanche, Amy, Denise, Carlotta and a new one from Mexico, Lisa.

Discussing the beauties, Farmer says, "Blanche is my favorite—perfectly formed, classic features and that eye right in the middle. Beautiful! But Blanche never came to the States. She just kept moving out into the Atlantic three weeks ago."

Farmer, chief engineer in the instrumentation department of International Harvester, praises Amy, Denise and Carlotta, but says Elinore "never did much of anything," and Hillary "was a no account last week, a real disappointment."

Farmer has a love affair going with hurricanes and tropical storms. He photographs their swirls and curls and eyes with $68 worth of homemade equipment he put together with one of his three sons, 16-year-old George.

They built a weather satellite tracking antenna out of old pipe fittings, window screens, aluminum clothesline wire and old motors. Then they put together a monitoring and signal print-out unit from parts of an old television set, an FM receiver "once used by my wife to listen to opera" and an ancient Associated Press wirephoto machine found in a ham radio store.

Farmer can make infrared photos and regular black and white pictures.

"The black and whites are better formed but the infrareds tell you the coldest and warmest parts of a storm and wind shear lines show up well," said Farmer. He started the hobby two years ago but his equipment really became operational only last fall.

His "pinups" have changed Farmer's lifestyle a bit. The best tracking time of the weather satellites is when they are passing over the Midwest in the morning or at night.

"I'm at it from about 6:30 p.m. to around 10 p.m., and sometimes again at 5 a.m.—I'm tied to satellites," he said. "I don't go to bed until I tune in on the amateur radio band to WIAW in Newington, Conn. Around 10 p.m. it broadcasts satellite data and reference passes supplied by NASA.

"My wife, Marian, takes it all in stride," said Farmer. "Her only request is for me to keep the tracking bleeps down to a dull roar so she can sleep in the mornings."

... for and about women

Samaritan or idiot?

Dear Ann Landers: Several days ago when I was alone with my 3-year-old daughter, a man rammed his car into a large tree in front of our house.

I heard the crash and ran to the window. I saw him get out of his car, his face covered with blood, and head for our front door.

I let him in the house, helped him to a chair and told him I would phone the police. He asked me not to because he had already received several tickets and was afraid his license might be taken away.

I offered to drive him to the hospital or call an ambulance. He said, "No, I've been in Vietnam and I've had enough of doctors and hospitals."

I then gave him a cloth, told him to go into the bathroom and wash off the blood. I made a pot of coffee as he tried unsuccessfully to phone his family.

By that time his nose had stopped bleeding and he seemed to be in fairly good condition. He thanked me for my kindness and called a tow truck.

Just as I was about to drive him home, a woman friend dropped in. I explained the situation and she came along with me, the man, and of course, I took my child. The man again let me know he was extremely grateful.

That evening when I told my husband and family about the incident they said I was crazy to have let him in the house—that it might have been a scheme, he could have raped me, robbed the house, and so on.

I still think I did the right thing, Ann. They insist I'm a fool. What is your opinion?—Samaritan Or Idiot?

Dear Samaritan: How sad that we are living in an era when people are scared to death to aid a person in need for fear of being raped, robbed or worse. It is also sad that people like your husband and his family have become so callous to the needs of others.

I say, in light of the facts as stated in your letter, you did the right thing. I would have done likewise.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is 23 years old. I am 22. We've been married less than a year. His drive isn't what it used to be.

I asked him yesterday what was wrong. He said, "It's the way you keep this apartment. The place is a mess and it turns me off."

Do you believe it?—Not Crazy Clean, So What?

Dear N.C.C.: No, I don't believe it. If a husband is really interested, he'll step over the garbage. Look for another reason. Dear Ann Landers: I'm 16, a girl, and have been told I'm very pretty. I've been dating for a couple of years and am considered fun.

Last night I had a blind date with a guy who was really neat. I was quite shook when he told me I kissed like an amateur. When I asked him what he meant he said, "It's like swimming with your overcoat on."

What DID he mean, Ann? How can I improve my kissing?—Miss W.W.

Dear Miss W.W.: Sorry, kissing instructions are out of my line. But I do give advice. And my advice to you is to cool it, kiddo. When you meet someone you really care about (and you can't make that decision on the first date) you won't need any lessons.

Baked corn a treat

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

What's a summer cookout without fresh corn-on-the-cob? For those whose gardens won't give up its own fresh corn for awhile, enjoy herb baked corn in its husks shipped fresh from Florida. This cooking method helps seal in that special corn flavor and requires little attention.

HERB BAKED CORN IN HUSKS

6 ears fresh Florida corn
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper

Carefully remove some of the outer husks from corn leaving several inner leaves attached. Carefully pull back remaining leaves part way. Remove silks from corn, leaving kernels exposed. In a small saucepan melt butter. Stir in Italian seasoning, parsley flakes, salt and black pepper. Brush mixture over corn kernels. Pull husks back over corn: tie with cord or strong thread. Place in a baking pan; cover with aluminum foil. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until corn is cooked, about 25 minutes. Corn

Bake fresh corn smeared with herb butter in its husk wrapped in foil may be placed at sides of grille in covered charcoal broiler. Turn after 10 minutes.

Home Canning of Tomatoes—Some tomato varieties for home garden production and canning recommended for Illinois are Heinz, 1350, Campbell 1327, Manapal, Manalucie and Supersonic.

Many of the phone calls and office calls that I am receiving these days concern one of our most recent problems in the home canning of tomatoes. The acid content of the tomato affects the quality and safety of the canned product. This problem is associated with some of the low acid tomato varieties as well as the climate and soil in which the tomatoes are grown. Weak acidity may permit the growth of organisms in the tomato that produce the toxin causing "botulism." Strong acidity prevents the growth of this organism.

Some research has been done by the United States Department of Agriculture to determine the best way to strengthen the acidity when canning different varieties of tomatoes. As new information is available, I will keep you informed. At the present time, we are advising Illinois residents to add citric acid when cooking the tomatoes. You may need to order cit-ric acid from the druggist a few days before you need it. Use as follows:

Add 1/4 teaspoon citric acid per pint; 1/2 teaspoon per quart. Add citric acid when cooking the tomatoes; mix well. Pack and process adding 1/2 teaspoon salt to pints; 1 teaspoon to quarts. Adjust jar lids and process in hot water bath; tomatoes hot pack: pint jars—10 minutes, quart jars—10 minutes; tomatoes packed raw—35 minutes, quart jars—45 minutes.

Botulism

Botulism is a true food poisoning that is produced in food by the microorganism Clostridium botulinum found in soil all over the world. This organism has the ability to form a spore very resistant to heat and chemicals. Its toxin is the most deadly known to man.

Cases of botulism are rare, but every year several outbreaks of individual cases occur.

Home or commercially canned or processed low-acid vegetables, meats, fish and poultry that have been insufficiently heated during processing or canning are the foods commonly involved. These include peas, corn, lima beans, green beans, mushroom, sauces and soups.

Conditions Needed for Botulism Outbreak—Several conditions are necessary for this situation to occur:

1. The botulism organism must be in the food.
2. The food is canned or processed in some way.
3. Inadequate processing or heating permits spore survival and toxin formation.
4. Conditions after processing permit spore growth and toxin formation.
5. The food is not heated enough before eating to inactivate the toxin.
6. The poisonous food is eaten.

Prevention Alert—Discard all food, raw or canned, that shows any signs of spoilage.

Discard all bulging or swollen cans of food and food from glass jars with bulging lids.

Do not taste food from swollen containers or food that is foamy or has a bad odor.

Process foods with low acid at temperatures above boiling and for the recommended time periods for the size of container used.

"WHEN IN DOUBT, THROW IT OUT"

Society punishes the old

Millions of Americans suffer from various kinds of discrimination—social, economic and personal. Black and Spanish Americans get hit viciously because of their color. Women get hit because of their sex. And we senior citizens get hit because of our age. We occupy third place in the order of how hard "he who gets slapped" get slapped.

There is, however, a big difference between the subtle prejudice based on age and the more easily recognized prejudice based on sex, religion, color or national origin. In fact, many of us seniors have not thought at all about the ways in which society discriminates against us. We are prejudiced because we are old.

We, therefore need an instrument like that used by other groups that have been callously looked down upon and relegated to the back of the bus.

Such an instrument does exist. Every other minority group uses it. We don't. The instrument is known as an Instinctive Prejudice Register—IPR.

An IPR is a device calibrated like a thermometer. It exists in the mind only. A sensitive member of a minority group turns on his IPR when he recognizes prejudice. For example, tell a black, "One of my best friends is a Negro," and his IPR goes to 90 degrees. He thinks, "There goes a white chauvinist honky."

Those of us in the over-60 age group who have sensitive IPRs face a special problem. We know that a great many people look down on us because we're elderly and unemployed. An ageist says something like, "You've worked all your life, dear, why bother your head with such serious things?" Your IPR goes to 93 degrees automatically. No problem there. The prejudice is obvious. What gets us down are the more subtle slights for which we must adjust our IPRs cleverly. A legislator introduces a bill in our favor. He knows the bill won't get to the floor. But he assumes that senior-agers don't know anything about the workings of the State Legislature and we'll vote for him anyhow. When I spot a put-down like that, my own IPR goes to 98 degrees.

An endless number of cases can be cited. A senior citizens club director treats us as if we were not-so-bright children. A daughter-in-law expects the "old lady" to stay in her room when there are guests. A civil servant at some government bureau talks rudely to us and pushes us around. An employer who has a part-time job open finds some excuse to turn down an older man or woman. All of these people reveal one thing in common. They are prejudiced against us because we are old.

My own IPR works very hard indeed. The truth is that I have begun to think of all the patronizing characters who send my IPR shooting above 80 degrees as enemies of the aged.

Presumably, you have all seen the White House enemies list as published in the newspapers. It's nothing. Wait until you see mine!

Soviet grain buying to push American food costs up 1.5%

WASHINGTON (AP)—When United States Department of Agriculture officials this week said Soviet grain purchases will add 1.5 per cent to domestic food prices it was based on an economic model that, some concede, may not truly reflect the total effect of giant, corporate bakers' pricing on the market they dominate.

The analysis that produced that figure is complicated, but it recently was explained more fully when the department prepared a report on the impact of Soviet purchases at the time the Russians had bought 4.5 million metric tons of American grain.

At that time, the department said Soviet purchases of wheat since last October would add about nine-tenths of a cent to the price of a pound loaf of bread over the next year. They figured that an increase of $1 in the price of wheat adds $0.012 cents to the value of the wheat in a one-pound loaf of bread.

The Russian purchase of about 4.5 million tons of wheat would add 75 cents to the price of a bushel of wheat; thus, $0.009 to the loaf, according to the analysis.

Now, with Soviet purchases standing at 10.3 million metric tons of American grain since last October, the grain trade's feelings, as reflected on Friday through futures exchanges in which speculators also work, were that the price of new wheat by next March might be in the neighborhood of $4.74 a bushel.

Wheat prices peaked at $5.52 a bushel in mid-February 1974—19 months after the last major Soviet purchase of U.S. grain, including 11.8 million tons of wheat, under different world economic conditions. The value of the wheat in bread peaked about the same time at around 6 cents a loaf.

A major USDA study of bread pricing, using 1973 data, found that the net farm value of the wheat involved amounts to 14.85 per cent of the retail price. The cost of labor in processing and transporting it alone accounts for 38.95 per cent, the study disclosed.

USDA's conclusions, then, are that first, since less than half the 1972 wheat sale is involved and price forecasts are below the peak, bread prices would not approach their spring 1974 levels, if wheat made a difference.

Second, they conclude, wheat doesn't make an appreciable difference to bread prices.

A 25 per cent increase in wheat prices, what it would take today to get them to the peak again, "would add less to the cost of a loaf of bread than a 4 per cent increase."

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE E-649: Dr. Dean McKinney was my gracious host when I addressed the Dental Society at Spartanburg, S.C., earlier this year.

A dozen of the leading dental surgeons and their wives had a little dinner party for me at the country club and also had invited dynamic Judge William Davenport and his wife.

"Dr. Crane," Judge Davenport smiled, "here's a letter that was printed yesterday in our Herald."

"It shows what 12 coeds at Limestone College think of your attack on Women's Lib and the use of Ms. instead of Mrs. or Miss."

Irate Coeds

Those 12 girls signed their letter in which they accused me of "Stone Age mentality."

They resented my reference to the "silly Ms. minority among women," apparently feeling that the vast majority of mature women agree with their youthful exuberance about Women's Lib.

They even warned the Spartanburg Herald against my "outrageously prejudiced column" and demanded that women be given more favorable treatment in the press.

Experienced editors relish such letters, for an indignant reader produces even more talk-up for the newspaper than does a subscriber who keeps agreeing 100 per cent.

Thus, you may recall the sage advertising maxim uttered by that famous publicity expert, P. T. Barnum, of circus fame, who said:

"I don't care what you say about me as long as you mention P. T. Barnum when you say it."

Previously, I have told you that astute William R. Hearst Sr., founder of the famous chain of Hearst newspapers, advised me to "needle" certain types of stodgy readers.

"Dr. Crane," he added, "that's how we built up such huge circulations for our early Hearst newspapers."

"For when you needle fat, stodgy wives, as well as lazy 'tenure' professors and soporific pulpit sermonizers, they write our editors red-hot letters, demanding that we cancel your column."

"But when we then print such letters, a splendid pro and con debate develops, which becomes the best read page in our newspapers!"

These alert coeds of Limestone College are obviously avid readers of their local Herald and especially this "Worry Clinic."

And that's the proof of a good newspaper, namely, the fact it stimulates thinking and debate!

Jesus thus stated that "The truth shall set you free," so newspapers are the most influential educators of the American public.

For almost every literate American reads a newspaper!

Thus, the Herald at Spartanburg has 150,000 daily "Students" of its varied reprint "curriculum."

Phil Buchheit, its versatile publisher, serves like other newspaper heads as chancellor of a great "University in Print."

Its talented editors and other executives function much like the prexy and faculty, so be grateful for newspapers, since they inform us the final 52 years when we are no longer in school classrooms.

Remember, most people quit school at 18, yet live to at least 70, so the newspaper is the daily educator of America.

If you coeds think this "Worry Clinic" promotes "Stone Age ideas and ideals," plenty of you other readers can get a lively debate going.

And when I show wives how to prevent divorce, as via "boudoir cheesecake," is that being prejudiced against women? Debate such issues!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of the Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

Great Plains farmers winning irrigation battle

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Farmers armed with modern irrigation equipment have launched a new assault in man's age-old battle to tame the Great Plains.

Approximately 4.5 million acres have come under irrigation in the plains states in the last 10 years, bringing the total to 22.6 million acres. Officials estimate irrigation adds roughly $11 billion annually to the Great Plains economy.

Hundreds of millions of bushels of grain have been added to annual world food production. But the water, placed in the ground over a period of thousands of years, is being used faster than nature can replace it.

Now the farmers are winning — at least temporarily.

The plains are being attacked with center pivot irrigation systems. They look like giant lawn sprinklers with a single arm a quarter of a mile long and pump water from underground wells and water supplies. The pivots can irrigate hillier land than regular systems.

Satellite photographs indicate the number of center pivot systems in Nebraska increased from 2,713 in 1972 to 6,500 in 1974.

Man has not completely conquered the plains, however. Hail, hot and cold temperatures, insects and weeds still take their toll.

Nebraska, the state leading the irrigation explosion, has enough underground water to theoretically cover the entire state to a depth of 39 feet. But the water is not always available where it is needed. The water table has its own geography, sometimes sloping as much as 75 feet per mile.

There are now more than 45,

000 wells sucking at the state's water table. The U.S. Geological Survey's computer projections say that wells in the Big and Little Blue River basins could be dry by 2022.

A Kansas Water Resources Board report says, "Large areas of western Kansas are mining their ground water, and even at present rates of withdrawal, water shortages will occur in the near future."

In Oklahoma, irrigation has taken its toll on the water tables of the Panhandle and Caddo County. "I don't think they will ever run dry, but will eventually reach the point where it is not economically feasible to continue pumping water from the deep areas," said Forrest Nelson of the Oklahoma Water Resources Board said.

In Texas, a Water Development Board report says only 37 per cent of the water under the High Plains will be left by 2020.

Farmers are trying to justify the cost of bringing Mississippi River water to the High Plains of Texas and Oklahoma is studying a plan to take water from the wetter eastern portion of the state to the dryer western area.

2 arrested in theft of bicycle

Two 18-year-old Rockford-area youths were apprehended in Byron Sunday and charged with grand theft.

Lester Gorman, 911 E. Second St., notified Dixon police at 5:15 p.m., that two men had taken a bicycle from his neighbor's yard. The yellow 10-speed was owned by Jon Stewart, 206 Steele Ave.

Gorman reported that two men drove by the neighborhood in a black 1969 Buick. One man left the car and rode off with the bicycle. Dixon police alerted Ogle County authorities and Byron police apprehended two suspects there and recovered the bicycle within an hour after the theft was reported.

Arrested were Steven Eugene Blodgett and David Keith Stewart. They were transported from Ogle County jail to the Lee County Law Enforcement Center where they were held without bond pending arraignment today.

The bike is valued at $184.

Rochelle man is accused

ROCHELLE — Val Gene Lukancic, 41, 201 N. Main St., Apt. 15, was charged Sunday by Rochelle police with battery.

Lukancic was arrested on a complaint signed by Kay Webb, 1110 Lincoln Ave. Webb accuses Lukancic of hitting her in the head, pulling her hair and threatening to cut her neck with a knife if she called police.

Lukancic was being held in jail under bond and is scheduled to appear in court at a later time.

Faces charge of assault

OREGON — Dennis R. Rutledge, 17, Rochelle, was arrested Sunday by Ogle County Sheriff's Deputies and charged with aggravated assault.

Rutledge was arrested on a complaint signed by Robert Johnson, DeKalb. Johnson accused Rutledge of threatening him with a tire iron in the parking lot of an Oregon tavern.

Rutledge has posted bond and is scheduled to appear in court today.

Driver charged after accident

Dixon police ticketed Charles A. Morgan Jr., 22, 1204 West First Street, for driving with unsafe tires following a mishap Sunday night.

Morgan was driving in the parking lot of Kroger Food Store near the exit onto Ill. 26. He lost control of his car which skidded around, flipped over and came to rest on its top.

Morgan told authorities that his accelerator stuck. No injuries were reported.

Two counts against driver

OREGON — Michael Schull, 19, Oregon, was arrested Sunday on two counts by the Ogle County Sheriff's Deputies.

Shull was charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and improper lane usage. Ogle deputies stopped Shull after they observed him driving in an erratic manner on the White Pines Blacktop.

Shull was being held in jail and was scheduled to appear in court today.

Chitwood thrill show at Ogle Fair Labor Day

Joie Chitwood Sr., who founded the auto thrill show that will be at the Ogle County Fair in Oregon on Labor Day, no longer takes an active part in the show, but you can bet his heart is still in it.

The senior Chitwood is content to stay in Tampa and run his automobile dealership and do a little fishing when he can. He leaves the driving to two sons.

The original Joie Chitwood got into the auto daredevil business back in 1943 only because he found himself custodian of suitable cars and equipment and he couldn't find a buyer for them. Lucky Teeter, a pioneer auto daredevil, was killed in a jump attempt and his widow asked old friend Joie to dispose of the rolling stock.

A year later Joie Chitwood was running his own show, despite gasoline and tire shortages brought on by World War II. He started with six vehicles and got down to a one-man show before new equipment became available. Sometimes he had to perform on iron wheels and burn propane gas, but the show always went on.

This is the 31st year of the Joie Chitwood

Thrill Show and it's a far cry from the early days. Now the two touring show units, headed by Joie Chitwood Jr. and Tim Chitwood, use fleets of new Chevrolets and the show includes 21 acts.

The eastern Chitwood unit ranges from its Florida base north to Maine, while the western unit roams the Midwest as far as the Dakotas. The two young Chitwoods headline the shows with identical acts and crews of veteran drivers.

Joie Jr. and Tim have both perfected the unique and precision "rocket-launched" jump 65 feet through the air onto a receiving ramp. One ramp a half-inch off or a half-mile variation of the car's speed could mean catastrophic results for the drivers.

The rocket leap is the most exciting ... and the most dangerous ... in the show. But the 20 other acts leading up to the finale provide thrills and chills, too. Slides, crashes, roll-overs and two-wheel precision turns are among the crowd pleasers. And there are clowns for the kids.

The show will begin at 8 p.m.

Nautical flavor as Ford and Daley huddle

CHICAGO (AP)—President Ford harkened back to his Navy days late Sunday when he sat down to dinner with one of the biggest Democrats of them all, Mayor Richard J. Daley.

The President explained the difference between his party and Daley's by saying that Daley "tends to favor the port (left) tack and I tend to favor the starboard (right) tack."

The setting was appropriate for the nautical flavor of Ford's remark—a private dinner at the Chicago Yacht Club held by Daley for participants and officials of the 1975 championships of the International Star Class Yacht Racing Association.

The dinner party was made up of 26 racing crew members and 38 personal guests of Daley, including such business figures as board chairman John Swearingen of Standard Oil of Indiana. Also on hand were all four of Daley's sons.

The warm reception of the nation's leading Republican by the Daley family may seem ironic to Democratic Presidential hopefuls, many of whom have made—or will make—political pilgrimages to Chicago to court the favor of Daley, who is sometimes considered the Democratic kingmaker. Ford came to Chicago to address a convention of hardware dealers Monday.

Ford's visit was perfectly timed for one of Daley's pet events, the city's annual Lakefront Festival, which caps off the Chicago summer with several weeks of air and water shows, fireworks, yacht races and boat parades.

Possibly in honor of the festival, the Presidential motorcade from O'Hare International Airport into the downtown area abandoned its traditional expressway route to take Ford's limousine down Lake Shore Drive, which runs along the Lake Michigan waterfront. Ford thus got a sunset and twilight view of Chicago's yacht basins, lakefront highrises and downtown skyline from their most impressive angle.

After his dinner of filet mignon and domestic champagne, Ford singled out one of the guest yachtsmen for a bit of attention. The yachtsman was another Jerry Ford, a crew member on a boat from the Miami area. The President called his namesake, who lives on a street named Betty Lane, "a very talented and capable crew."

Giants' victory over the Jets was a snap

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

The Giants' victory over their New York City rival Jets was a snap.

With the Giants leading 21-20 and one play left in the National Football League exhibition game Sunday at New Haven, Conn., the Giants sent rookie center Joe Fields in to snap the ball on Pat Leahy's 38-yard field-goal attempt.

The Jets press guide has this to say about the center from Widener College: "Makes the long snap."

But Fields' last-play snap sailed far over Leahy's head and Giants defensive back Pete Athas fell on the ball at mid-field.

"I just put too much pressure on the ball and it took off," said Fields.

Jets Coach Charley Winner felt the pressure might be too much on Fields: "He's a young kid thrown into a pressure-packed situation. But the time to use him is in preseason to get him used to being under fire."

Regular quarterback Craig Morton threw two third-period touchdown passes as the Giants erased a 13-7 halftime deficit. With Joe Namath on the sidelines with an injury, J.J. Jones passed for two Jets touchdowns.

In Saturday games, Buffalo topped Los Angeles 31-24; Minnesota edged Dallas 16-13; Cincinnati stopped Green Bay 17-10; Oakland whipped Atlanta 27-7; Miami beat New Orleans 20-10; Denver downed Houston 27-21; Chicago edged St. Louis 14-13, and Detroit nipped Kansas City 27-24.

O.J. Simpson and Jim Braxton did what is expected of them on the ground—Simpson ran for 74 yards and a touchdown on 16 carries and Braxton had two touchdowns smashed—but it was a surprise aerial arm that keyed Buffalo's victory over Los Angeles on national television.

Buffalo Coach Lou Saban used unheralded second-year man Gary Marangi at quarterback and Marangi responded by hitting eight of 16 passes for 148 yards including a 55-yard touchdown pass to Ahmad Rashad.

"I'm always confident," Marangi said of his poise against the Rams, who got two touchdowns passes from regular quarterback James Harris.

Fran Tarkenton's 12-yard TD pass with 39 seconds left gave Minnesota its victory over Dallas, which now has lost three straight preseason games. Dallas had gone ahead 13-9 on Roger Staubach's 73-yard scoring pass to Golden Richard with 5:38 remaining.

Ken Anderson threw three first-half touchdowns passes in the Bengals' win over Green Bay. Steve Odom scored the Packers' touchdown on a 100-yard kickoff return.

Ken Stabler passed 41 yards to Morris Bradshaw and Pete Banazak ran six yards for another in the first half to spark Oakland's triumph over the Falcons.

Miami won its game against the Saints in the first period when defensive end Vern Den Herder ran 34 yards for a touchdown with an intercepted pass and Bob Griese threw a 12-yard scoring strike to Nat Moore.

The keys to Denver's victory over Houston were two fumble recoveries. Lyle Alzado, a 265-pound defensive end, set up a touchdown with a 59-yard run with a recovered fumble to Houston's three-yard line and linebacker Bob Swenson set up another by pouncing on a loose ball at the Oilers' 31. The touchdown following Swenson's recovering gave Denver a 27-7 lead.

Clifton Johnson scored twice from the two-yard line in the fourth quarter, the second time with only 30 seconds left in the game, and lifted Chicago to a 14-13 win over St. Louis.

Detroit opened its new $55.7 million stadium at Pontiac, Mich., with a 21-point fourth quarter to beat Kansas City. Greg Landry passed for two Lions touchdowns.

Johnson approaching Long's record as Astros overcome the Cubs 8-4

CHICAGO (AP)—Cliff Johnson, Houston's hard-hitting catcher, isn't "that interested in records" but he can add a little spice to the major league scene if he keeps up his home-run hitting.

Johnson crashed his 15th home run of the season in the fifth inning Sunday to break a 3-3 tie and send the Houston Astros to an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

The homer also was the fifth Johnson has hit in five consecutive games bringing him within three of the record of eight in eight straight games set by Dale Long of Pittsburgh in 1956.

"I was there when Long set the record," said Houston's new manager, Bill Virdon. "A record like that is very difficult but Johnson's got the power to hit home runs anywhere."

"I don't keep up with records and I'm not that interested in records," said Johnson, 28, who is 6-foot-4 and 225 pounds. "If I hit eight more the rest of the season, it'll be a blessing."

If Johnson continues his assault on the Long record, it'll have to be in St. Louis where the Astros play the next three nights.

Johnson's homer was his only hit Sunday while Wilbur Howard, Jose Cruz and Bobby Watson picked up the slack. Howard had a double and three singles in his first four at bats Sunday, giving him 10 hits in the three-game series in which the Astros smashed out 45 hits.

Cruz hit two homers and a double and Watson crashed his 16th homer to open the seventh inning. Cruz then followed with his second of the game and seventh of the season as the Astros put the game away with three more runs.

Before Howard flew out in the seventh inning, he had run his streak to seven consecutive hits. "That's the best I've ever had, it's about time I did something,"

Virdon, who took over at Houston from Preston Gomez last Tuesday, said that "potentially, this club has some good hitters. They can swing the bat. I had never seen Howard before but he's done a great job since I've been here."

The Cubs jumped to a 3-0 lead early in the game. Bill Madlock walked, stole second and scored on a single by Jose Cardenal. Cardenal then stole second and scored on a single by Herry Morales.

Singles by Madlock and Cardenal and a sacrifice fly by Morales gave the Cubs a 3-0 lead in the third.

Larry Dierker then settled down and allowed the Cubs but two hits the rest of the day.

Andy Thornton opened the sixth with his eighth homer but Dierker retired the last 12 men in order as the Astros picked up their fifth triumph against seven losses to the Cubs this season. It was also Houston's third victory against two defeats since Virdon took over.

Winds lose 28-17, Duane wanders in

By The Associated Press

The Hawaiians would like to get some more yardage out of Duane Thomas, who showed in their lineup Saturday night. But the Philadelphia Bell is out to block Thomas from running for any other World Football club.

Thomas carried five times for 17 yards for the Hawaiians, who beat visiting Chicago 28-17 as Sonny Sixkiller fired three touchdown passes. Thomas' appearance was under a one-game agreement, according to WFL President Chris Hemmelter.

Hawaiian officials said they hoped to sign the controversial Thomas to a regular contract. But Philadelphia General Manager Rich Iannarella said he had sent a telegram to the league saying the Bell would protest the signing of Thomas by any other WFL club.

Thomas played out his option with the National Football League's Washington Redskins. The WFL has assigned the Bell negotiating rights to Thomas and any other player released by Washington.

The Bell also made news Saturday night by upsetting Memphis 22-18 in Philadelphia, leaving the WFL without any unbeaten teams.

In other Saturday night games, Jacksonville beat San Antonio 26-19 in overtime, *Southern California topped Birmingham 35-25 and Portland downed Shreveport 33-24.

"He threw hard and with authority," Hawaiians receiver Tim Delaney said of Sixkiller, who brought his team back from a 17-3 deficit with his three touchdown passes, two of them to Delaney.

But the big cheers by a Honolulu crowd of 10,313 were for Thomas, who responded by singing autographs after the game, a custom he usually shuns.

"It's good for the league and it shows that even the best team is not unbeatable," said quarterback Bob Davis, whose one-yard touchdown run in the final two minutes gave the Bell its upset of Memphis. The Grizzlies had gone ahead a few minutes earlier on Jim Klieck's one-yard scoring plunge.

"If you can win a game like this one you win them all," said Jacksonville Coach Charles Tate after the Express moved into a first-place tie with Memphis in the Eastern Division with its overtime win over San Antonio.

Alfred Haywood's 15-yard touchdown run 3½ minutes into overtime won it for the Express, which had tied the game 19-19 on Charles Durkee's 26-yard field goal, his fourth of the game, with 32 seconds left in regulation play. Less than two minutes before Durkee's game-tying kick, Luther Palmer had put the Wings ahead 19-16 on a 21-yard field goal.

Dodgers come up empty Halicki throws no-hitter

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

While Ed Halicki was throwing zeroes at the New York Mets in San Francisco, the Dodgers were coming up empty in Los Angeles.

Not that they didn't score, hit or steal bases. But while Halicki was the reason the Mets lost a 6-0 no-hitter Sunday, the Dodgers had themselves to blame for a 5-3, 14-inning loss to Montreal.

Virtually everything that could have gone wrong went that way for Los Angeles, which wasted 11 innings of four-hit pitching by Don Sutton; had an apparent winning run nullified when an illegal Dodger's bat was discovered, and saw the winning Expos run score on a wild pitch by Mike Marshall.

The Mets, at least, were overpowered by a pitcher who permitted only four batted balls to reach the outfield; one who missed the strike zone only 35 times in 122 pitches. Four batted balls to the Los Angeles infield turned into errors — two by Dave Lopes and two by Phil Russell — and then there was Marshall's toss away from the strike zone and away from catcher Steve Yeager.

It was the classic contrast of perfection and bombast at two major league parks in the same state. Halicki, once a Met fan, owned them Sunday — just as mistakes owned the Dodgers.

Mets 9-0, Giants 5-6

"I was," said Ed Halicki, "oblivious to everything. It was like a dream. Then all the guys poured out of the dugout and I realized what I had done."

Somewhat, he must not have heard the 24,000-plus voices at Candlestick Park who were cheering every pitch from the sixth inning on. They went wild when the no-hitter was completed by the 6-foot-7 hurler whose love for the Mets once took him to Baltimore to watch them play in the 1969 World Series.

It was the sixth no-hitter against the Mets in their 14-year history and the first in the National League since Atlanta's Phil Niekro turned the trick against San Diego on Aug. 5, 1973. The last no-hitter by a San Francisco pitcher was hurled by Gaylord Perry against St. Louis on Sept. 17, 1968.

In the opener, Dave Kingman hit a giant grand slam home run to help beat his former teammates. The celebration didn't last long.

Expos 5, Dodgers 3

The Dodgers could have won their game in the sixth inning, but Bill Buckner's bat was ruled illegal after he had cracked an apparently tie-breaking hit. Buckner was called out and the run was canceled.

Plate Umpire Doug Harvey had thrown the bat aside so that it wouldn't interfere with a possible play at the plate. Then he made the discovery — the bat had grooves in it.

"An illegal bat — it's as simple as that," said Harvey. "They (batters) use an ice pick, a can opener, something in between the grain of the wood. It gives the bat a grip. It's an old trick. It's happened before."

Gary Carter walked with one out in a 2-2 game and moved to third on Pete Mackanin's single. Then Marshall let fly the

What makes some mail late?

Combination of men and machines leads to delays

By HOWARD ANGIORE
Associated Press Writer

Americans mail almost one billion letters a week. Millions of them reach their destination later than they should, and some never arrive. Why?

Like the girl in the nursery rhyme who was either very good or horrid, the combination of machinery and human beings at work handling the U.S. mail can mesh beautifully one minute to provide good service, then mess everything up the next.

Postal officials minimize the extent of delays, claiming that service is good and complaints are declining. But examples of foulups abound:

—A company in New York mails an envelope of paychecks to its Phoenix office for distribution to employees there. The envelope arrives eight days later.

—A young woman mails a bill payment to a local department store three days before the deadline for receipt. It arrives five days after the deadline, and she is charged interest because it was late.

—Two letters, mailed in the same box at the same time, reach neighboring destinations several days apart.

The Postal Service calculates that it provides "on time" delivery for 24 out of every 25 local letters and for 23 out of every 25 long-distance letters.

"On time" means the next day within metropolitan areas if a letter is picked up by 5 p.m.; within two days if a letter is traveling 600 miles or less; and within three days if a domestic letter must travel more than 600 miles. Sunday is not counted as a "day."

There are reasons to question the accuracy of the Postal Service figures, but if they are accepted and applied to statistics showing that there is roughly a 50-50 split between metropolitan and long-distance mail, they point to late arrival each week for 20 million metropolitan letters and 40 million long-distance letters.

The sampling system the Postal Service uses to gauge delivery speed is unable to provide estimates on how many letters are lost.

From the time you put a letter in a mail box until it reaches its destination, it must cope with dozens of opportunities for delay.

Drivers assigned to collection routes have been known to miss pickups at certain boxes, a letter can get lost in the folds of a mail sack or other cracks and crevices along the way, bad weather can disrupt airplane and truck schedules, post offices may not have enough clerks on duty, and carriers can make mistakes.

But the number of delays caused by these problems are minuscule. Most often, the blame for delays — especially those of several days — can be traced to the letter-sorting process.

Any analysis of the sorting process quickly focuses on the machinery that is used, especially the large letter-sorting machines where man, machinery and the U.S. mail encounter notable success and disaster.

These machines, and the sorting clerks who operate them, handle roughly half of the letters mailed in the United States at least once — and often three or four times if a letter must be routed through several post offices.

Clerks sorting letters the old way — by hand, into a box of pigeonholes — also make mistakes, but postal officials acknowledge that the method involves fewer errors than the combination of men and machines. Officials add, however, that the hand method is slower and more expensive.

The typical letter-sorting machine — an LSM in postal jargon — is a rectangular metal box about four feet wide, taller than the walls of the average one-story house and almost twice as long.

Twelve clerks, sitting at desk-size consoles attached to the LSM, look at letters that are placed in front of them at the rate of about one per second by a little mechanical wrist with a suction cup hand. For each letter, a clerk types two or three numbers — usually part of the zip code — that the machine uses to route the envelope to one of the 277 aluminum sorting bins that honeycomb one side of the machine.

The problem is that some letters don't get to the right bins, either because the operator strikes a wrong key or because the machine makes a mistake. And some letters never get to any bin — they fall into the works and must be pulled out later, often in mutilated form. Sometimes it's possible to decipher the address, sometimes it isn't.

The government's General Accounting Office, reporting last summer on a check of LSM operations in three Southern post offices, said console operators have a "rigorous and tedious job."

GAO found that 30 per cent of the 141 operators it tested made errors 10 per cent of the time, and "only 18 per cent were within the 2 per cent error rate allowed for qualification" as an LSM operator. GAO blamed the machines themselves for errors 1.8 per cent of the time.

Apply the percentages to LSM volume, and you're quickly into the millions. Postal officials say 562 LSMs in operation nationwide sort an average of 25,000 letters per hour, eight hours per day.

Assume that man and machine have a total error rate of 5 per cent, and it works out to 702,500 mistakes per hour, or 5.62 million per day. That's still a fraction of total volume, but it's enough to cause a lot of problems. It's also expensive — GAO estimated that rehandling missorted mail cost $1,060 per day in one post office.

Postal officials say their first line of defense against mistakes is manned by clerks who empty the machine bins. The clerks rifle through the letters, culling out hundreds of missorted ones per hour. But mistakes still slip through the defense line.

An Associated Press reporter, who wondered how many mistakes are not caught, obtained permission to check the trays where letters are placed after they have been riffled by clerks.

Any letter not headed for the destination marked on the tray faces a needless journey, unless it is lucky enough to be caught in one of the spot checks postal officials say are made of riffing efficiency.

On visits to six post offices in five Eastern cities, the reporter selected at random trays containing letters not due to be looked at again until they reached post offices in the Midwest and West.

Out of 4,657 letters checked, 267 — or 5.7 per cent — would have gone astray for several days if they had not been spotted by the reporter. They included 128 letters that would normally have reached their destinations the next day.

Even if a letter reaches the correct LSM bin, however, it still faces sorting hazards that can cause long delays.

Every so often a riffing clerk takes a handful of envelopes from a bin and eliminates mistakes, but places the bundle in the wrong tray. That appeared to have been the reason for many of the errors in the tray of mail from Kansas City — missorted letters appeared in clusters, suggesting that a clerk had mistakenly put handfuls of letters for Missouri cities in the tray for New York mail.

Once a tray is filled, new hazards for misrouting appear. The letters travel in bags or in cardboard containers that postal workers say are occasionally mislabeled. And even if correctly labeled, it's possible for dock workers to load the bags on the wrong truck.

In its report on mail delays, the GAO concluded: "The Service has not been completely successful in meeting its first-class mail delivery standards. This situation is due in part to the amount of missent mail. Although the high productivity of LSMs has helped the Service handle the increasing mail volume, operator errors and careless handling of sorted mail have, to a certain extent, defeated the objectives of mechanization and added to the cost of mail delivery."

Next: What is the Postal Service doing to improve its ability to handle the mail?

The Doctor Says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — Within the past year my husband has had two attacks of gout in his foot. He is 48. What foods should he avoid? Is there any diet to prevent these attacks? What brings them on? Should he avoid certain foods all the time or just when he has an attack?

DEAR READER — The idea persists that the best way to treat gout is by diet. That would have been true several years ago, but we now have medicines that are very effective in controlling gout so diet is of less importance than it once was.

Gout is caused by an excess amount of uric acid. It is a byproduct of the formation of DNA, that vital substance of genes, in the nucleus of all of the cells in your body. When a new cell is formed the DNA in the nucleus of a cell is duplicated like printing another picture to enable the new cell to be like the old one. That is how your new hair that replaces old hair on a regular basis has the same characteristics and color as the old hair.

The formation of DNA is a continuous process as long as you live, because your body is constantly regenerating itself. Red blood cells only live for 120 days and must be replaced. Your body manufactures three million new ones every second to replace the old ones. In some people this process is associated with formation of excess amounts of uric acid as a byproduct. Regardless of what you eat this process will go on.

One of the new medicines, allopurinol (Zyloprim), blocks the overproduction of uric acid by the cells and stops the process at its origin. There are other medicines for control of the acute attack of gout and to eliminate excess uric acid through the kidneys. Efforts have been made to eliminate purines from the diet. This is achieved by eliminating foods containing abundant cell nuclei. Purines are the basic building blocks your body uses to make uric acid. However, since the purines come from amino acids from protein it is a losing battle. Experiments have been done by feeding calves just milk, and they grow new cells and form uric acid. Milk contains no cells and is purine-free. Regardless of how strict the diet is, you can only lower the uric acid level a tiny amount, not enough to prevent or control gout.

Because heart disease is such a common complication of gout it is a good idea to go on a low-fat, low-saturated fat low-cholesterol diet. You should use the same diet proposed to prevent heart and vascular disease for people who do not have gout.

Acute attacks are sometimes precipitated by excessive eating, as on holidays, excessive drinking and excessive exercise. The rule here is to follow the old axiom, everything in moderation. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)
